

THE MOCCA-EXAMPLE:

A MASTER PROGRAMME IN PUBLIC HEALTH WITH INTEGRATED MOBILITY

Annette Grewe
for the curriculum group

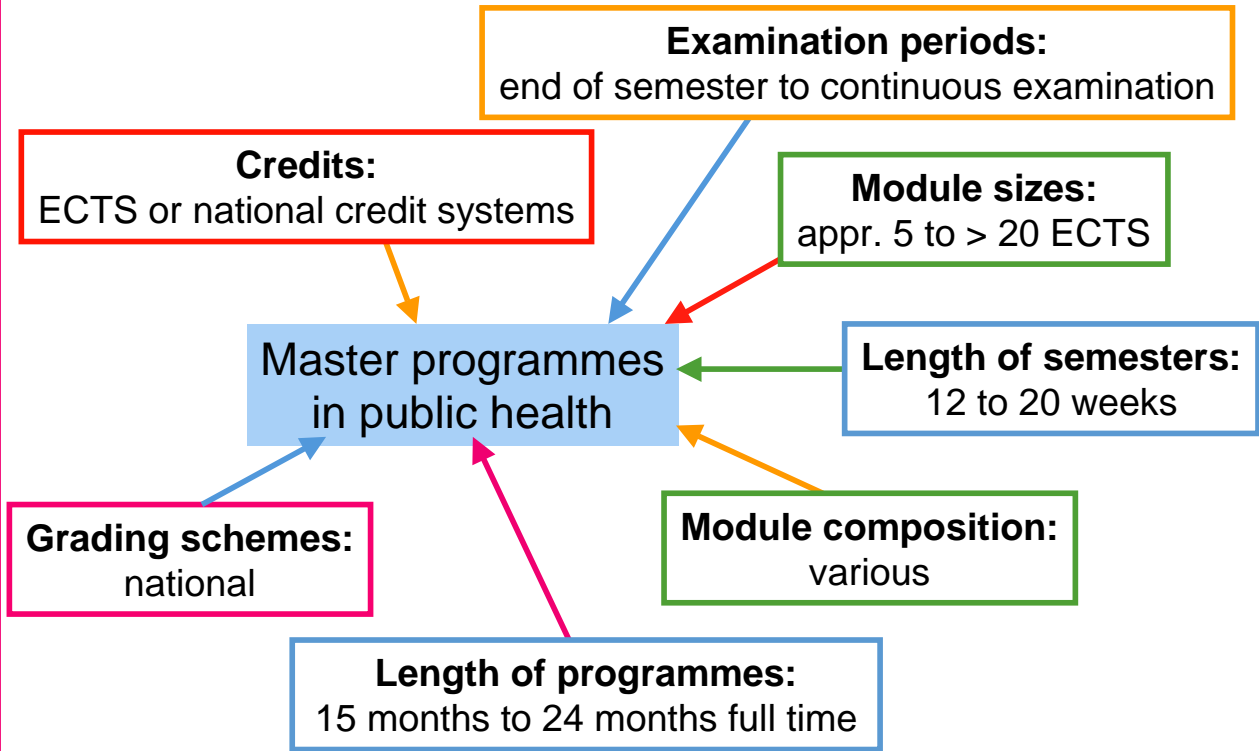

Annette Grewe, University of Applied Sciences, Fulda, Germany

Curriculum group: Partners

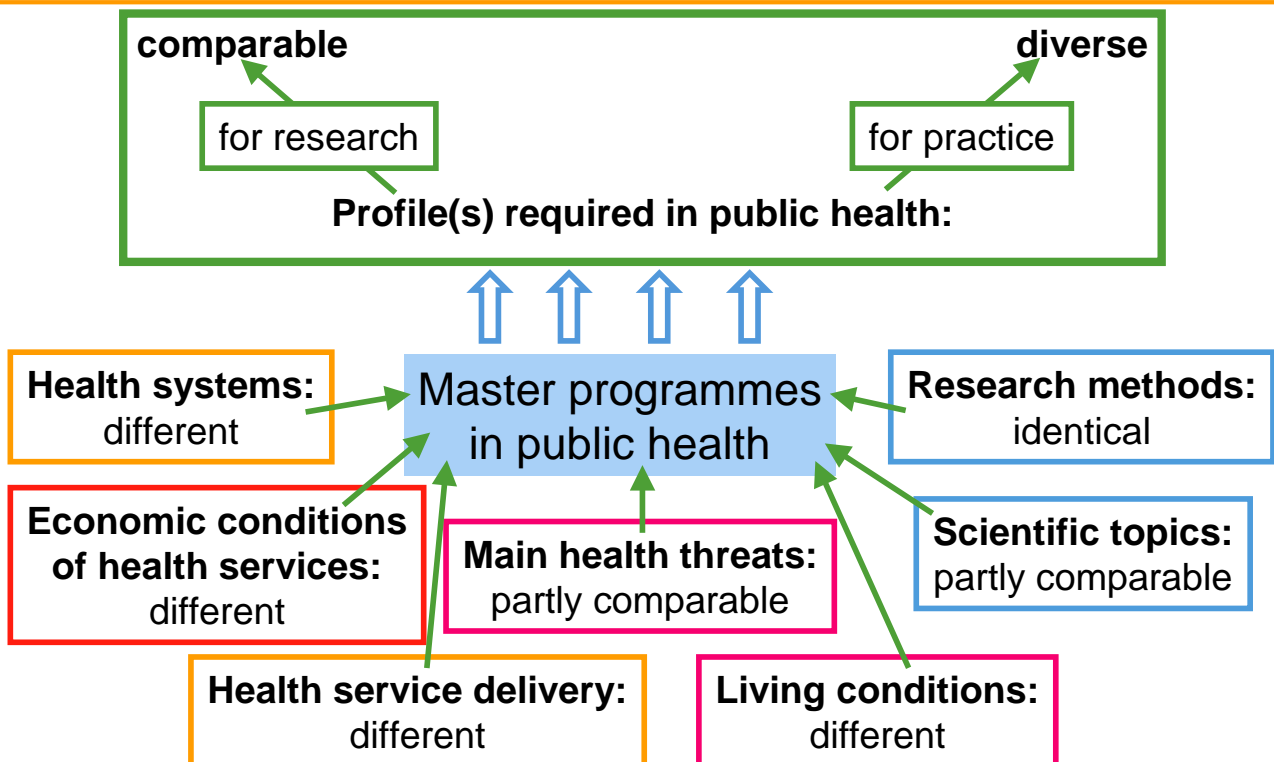

Annette Grewe, University of Applied Sciences, Fulda, Germany

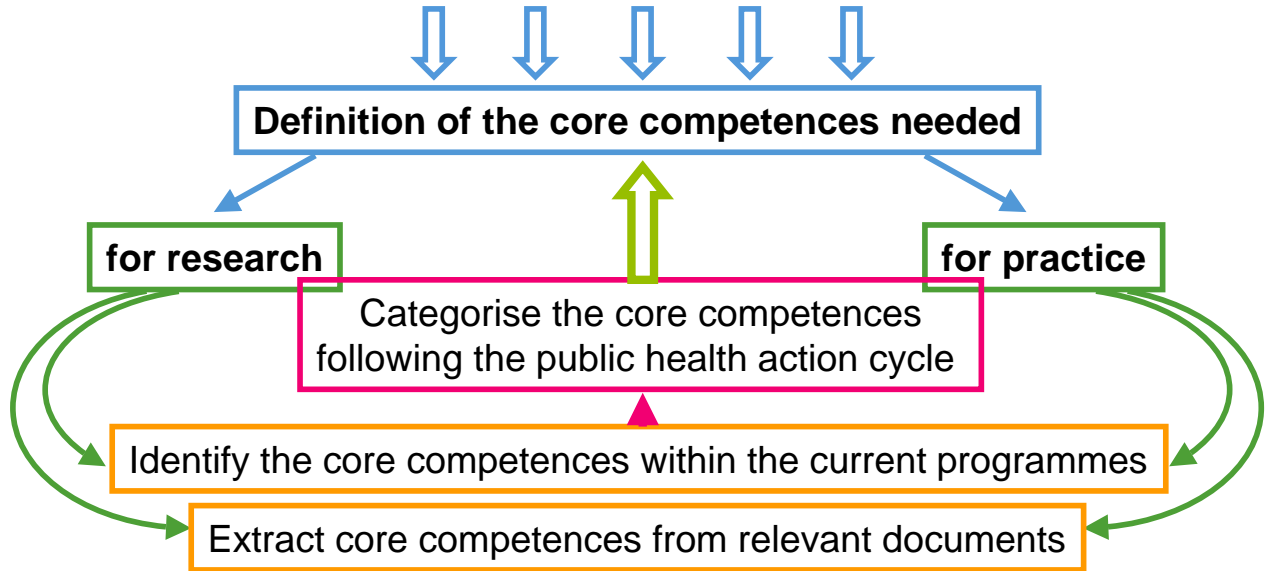

Current programmes: „Baseline data“

Public health: diversities and similarities

1. Definition of the academic and professional profiles of a graduate in the field of public health

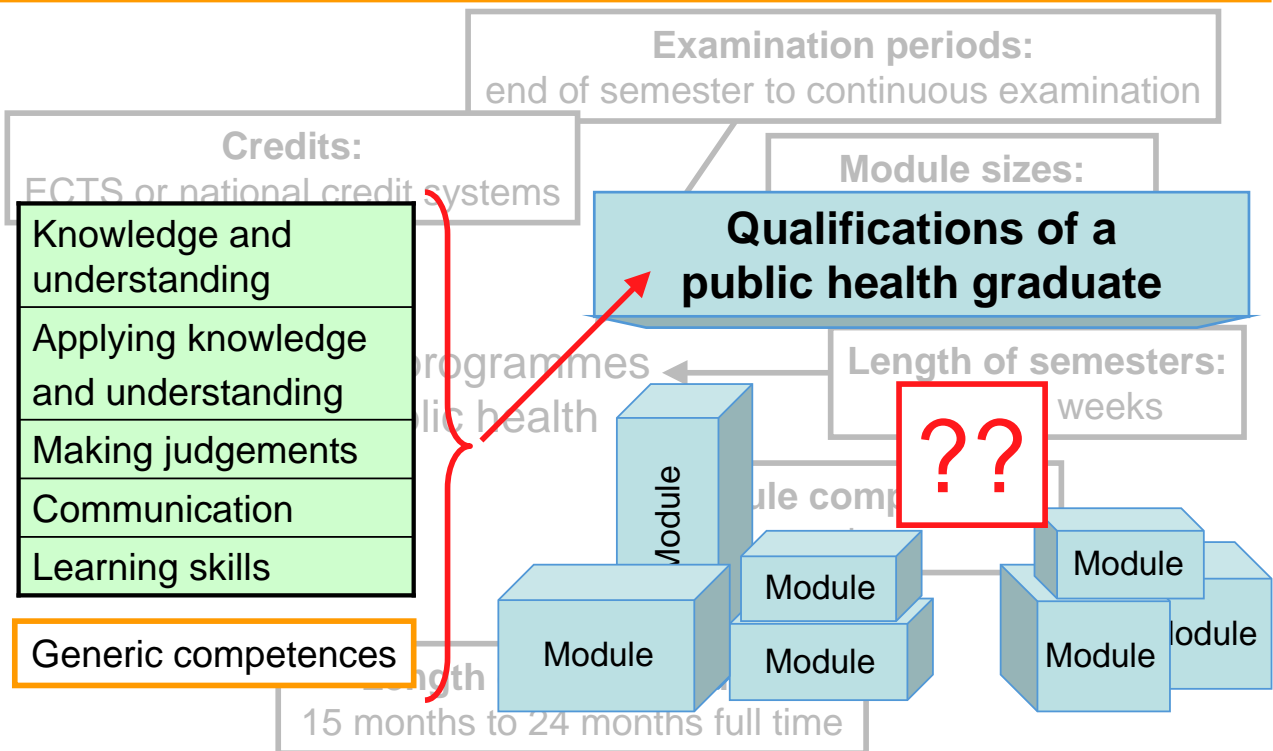

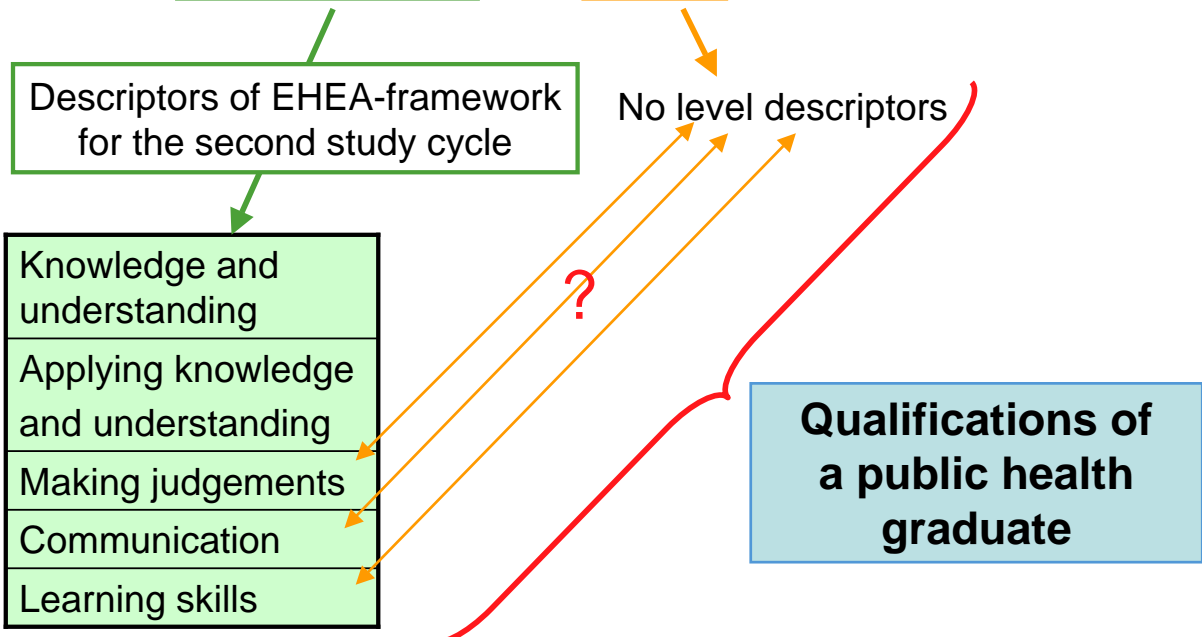

1. Definition of the academic and professional profiles of a graduate in the field of public health:

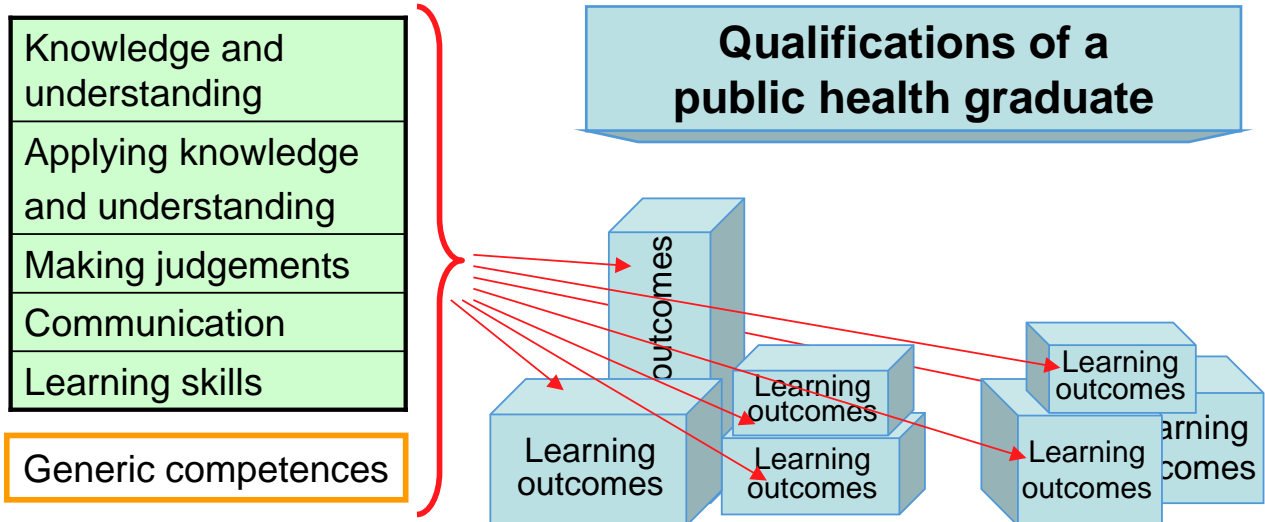

Results (Handout, Table 3)

Assessment and monitoring	Policy development	Policy implementation	Evidence of effectiveness
Assessment and surveillance of population health status and the determinants of health using routine and non-routine data ...	Development of public policy, including legislation and regulation, in collaboration with communities and governmental agencies which aims to: ...	Empowerment of communities through engagement, consultation and partnerships to facilitate the promotion of healthy lifestyles ...	Critical appraisal of evidence for the effectiveness of health-related interventions, policies and population-based programmes ...

2. Translation of the profiles into learning outcomes/
subject specific and generic competences:

3. Translation into core modules:

3. Translation into core modules:

Results (tables 5a to 5e)

Qualifications of a public health graduate
Semester 4	Learning outcomes of the Master thesis 30 ECTS
Semester 3	Learning outcomes 10 ECTS	Learning outcomes 10 ECTS	Learning outcomes 10 ECTS
Semester 2	Policy development	Health systems and health economics	Learning outcomes 10 ECTS
Semester 1	Public health approaches and its application	Determinants of health and health inequalities	Research methods epidemiology, statistics

4. Integration of mobility:

“Mobility window”

Qualifications of a public health graduate

Semester 4	Learning outcomes of the Master thesis 30 ECTS
Semester 3	Specialisation 10 ECTS	Specialisation 10 ECTS	Specialisation 10 ECTS
Semester 2	Policy development	Health systems and health economics	Optional module 10 ECTS
Semester 1	Public health approaches and its application	Determinants of health and health inequalities	Research methods epidemiology, statistics

Annette Grewe, University of Applied Sciences, Fulda, Germany

Mobility experience: Learning outcomes (table 5f)

Master programme in Public Health: Mobility module
Knowledge and understanding	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> •Core functions of public health, public health policy and public health strategies in the host country...
Applying knowledge and understanding	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> •Identify main common and distinct public health issues within the home country and the host country •... •Critically compare and contrast academic teaching and provision of facilities to support learning in the host and home universities
Making judgements	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> •Design strategies to improve cross-border collaboration within the field of public health •... •Deduce approaches to improve the design of the public health study programme, the teaching and the learning conditions in the home university
Communication	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> •Use the second language for everyday and topic-specific oral and written communication
Learning skills	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> •Study in a manner that is largely self-directed or autonomous

Annette Grewe, University of Applied Sciences, Fulda, Germany

4. Integration of mobility:

“Mobility window”

“Mobility module”

Qualifications of a public health graduate

